On the situation in the Central African Republic

4. The members of the Security Council and the Peace and Security Council expressed concern at the security and humanitarian situation in the Central African Republic, including recent attacks against civilians and humanitarian organizations, as well as intercommunal clashes involving former Seleka and anti-Balaka militias, which have resulted in harmful consequences to the civilian population, hampered the efforts of the international community to restore peace and stability in the country and worsened an already dire humanitarian situation in the country.
5. They condemned the persistent violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights in the country. In this context, they stressed the urgent and imperative need to end impunity in the Central African Republic and to bring to justice perpetrators of such violations and abuses. They also expressed concern at the dire humanitarian situation in the country and emphasized in particular the humanitarian needs of the more than 550,000 internally displaced persons and of the more than 300,000 refugees in neighbouring countries. They underscored the importance of providing financial support to those countries hosting refugees from the Central African Republic.
6. They recognized that the return of refugees and displaced persons as well as their participation in the political dialogue and elections to be held no later than February 2015 are conditions for the return of lasting peace and stability in the Central African Republic.

7. The members of the Security Council and the Peace and Security Council reaffirmed their commitment to the unity, sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Central African Republic. They welcomed the positive and important impact of the deployment of the African-led International Support Mission to the Central African Republic (MISCA), including in protecting civilians. They also welcomed the deployment of a United Nations operation in the Central African Republic, the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic (MINUSCA), which marks a new step towards a broader and more sustained international engagement in the country. They made an urgent appeal to the international community and donors to mobilize substantial resources for MISCA to enable it to better fulfil its mission and prepare the ground for the smooth transfer of authority from MISCA to MINUSCA on 15 September 2014. They stressed the need for the coordination of efforts between the United Nations, the African Union and the subregion (the Economic Community of Central African States (ECCAS)) in ensuring a successful transition, drawing lessons from previous experiences. They also called for the close coordination of efforts with Operation Sangaris and the European Union mission to the Central African Republic. They further stressed the importance of the effective implementation of the measures contained in resolutions 2127 \(2013\) and 2134 \(2014\) to the re-establishment of peace and security in the country.

They recognized the essential role of the Mediator, Denis Sassou Nguesso, President of the Republic of the Congo, and the International Contact Group on the Central African Republic, co-chaired by the African Union Commission and the Republic of the Congo. 13. They strongly condemned the ongoing violations and abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, including sexual and gender-based violence, and the recruitment and use of children perpetrated by armed groups, and called for the immediate cessation of all forms of violence.

15. The members of the Security Council and the Peace and Security Council called upon all signatories and countries in the region, in their efforts to fight against armed groups, to fulfil promptly, fully and in good faith their respective commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the region. On the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur

27. The members of the Security Council and the Peace and Security Council expressed deep concern at the considerable deterioration of the security situation in Darfur during 2013, with continued clashes between the Government of the Sudan and rebel armed groups and an intensification of intercommunal violence, including with the involvement of elements of paramilitary units and tribal militias, which have become the main source of violence against civilians and of population displacement. They noted that the ability of UNAMID to facilitate progress in the implementation of the Doha Document is hampered by delays by the signatory parties and the absence of an inclusive political settlement between the Government of the Sudan and non-signatory armed movements. They urged donors to honour their pledges and fulfil their obligations in a timely manner, including those commitments made at the conference in Doha in April 2013, and affirmed that development can support a lasting peace in Darfur.

They looked forward to further developments towards the implementation of an inclusive dialogue process and stressed the importance of the effective participation of women in this process, and in efforts towards peace in Darfur. They expressed satisfaction with the efforts made by the African Union-United Nations Joint Special Representative for Darfur, Joint Chief Mediator and Head of UNAMID, Mohammed Ibn Chambas, in bridging the gap between the Government and the non-signatory rebel groups in the promotion of national dialogue. They highlighted the need for States to cooperate closely during incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups in accordance with applicable international law and for all States to afford one another the greatest measure of assistance in connection with criminal investigations or criminal proceedings relating to the financing or support of terrorist acts. They called upon all member States to prevent terrorists from benefiting directly or indirectly from ransom payments or from political concessions and to secure the safe release of hostages. 32. They called upon all States to continue international efforts to enhance dialogue and broaden understanding among civilizations in an effort to prevent the indiscriminate targeting of different religions and cultures, and to take all measures as may be necessary and appropriate and in accordance with their obligations under international law to counter incitement of terrorist acts motivated by extremism and intolerance and to prevent the subversion of educational, cultural and religious institutions by terrorists and their supporters.

33. The members of the Security Council and the Peace and Security Council considered intelligence information sharing and sanctions as important tools in countering terrorism, and underlined the importance of prompt and effective implementation of the relevant resolutions, in particular Security Council resolutions 1267 \(1999\) and 1989 \(2011\), as key instruments in the fight against terrorism. Strengthening cooperation between the United Nations Security Council and the African Union Peace and Security Council within the framework of the United Nations-African Union partnership

35. The members of the Security Council and the Peace and Security Council underlined the importance of the relationship between the two Councils in addressing peace and security needs in Africa and welcomed the progress made in this regard, including through regular meetings.

36. They agreed to elaborate further ways of strengthening relations between the two Councils, including through more effective annual consultative meetings, holding of timely consultations, and collaborative field missions of the two Councils, as appropriate, to formulate cohesive positions and strategies on a case-by-case basis in dealing with conflict situations in Africa.

37. They underscored the importance of providing support to African Union-led peace support operations on a flexible, predictable and sustainable basis, including through greater provision of financing by African Union member States and individual donor countries, while reiterating that regional organizations have the responsibility to secure human, financial, logistical and other resources for their organizations, including through contributions by their members and support from partners.

38. They noted the collaborative efforts in conflict and crisis situations on a number of cross-cutting issues, including through the Framework of Cooperation between the Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict and the African Union Commission Concerning the Prevention and Response to Conflict-related Sexual Violence in Africa, adopted in Addis Ababa on 31 January 2014, and welcomed the designation of Bineta Diop as the African Union Commission Chairperson's Special Envoy on Women, Peace and Security. They also welcomed the first open session of the Peace and Security Council of the African Union on children affected by armed conflict and noted the enhanced collaboration between the Peace and Security Department of the African Union Commission and the Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict.

39. The members of the Security Council and the Peace and Security Council agreed to convene their ninth annual joint consultative meeting in Addis Ababa in 2015. The date of the meeting will be determined through consultations between the Chairperson of the African Union Peace and Security Council and the President of the United Nations Security Council.
