
Report of the Secretary-General

I. Introduction

1. The present report is the sixty-first submitted pursuant to paragraph 17 of Security Council resolution 2139 (2014), paragraph 10 of resolution 2165 (2014), paragraph 5 of resolution 2191 (2014), paragraph 5 of resolution 2258 (2015), paragraph 5 of resolution 2332 (2016), paragraph 6 of resolution 2393 (2017), paragraph 6 of resolution 2401 (2018) and paragraph 6 of resolution 2449 (2018), in the last of which the Council requested the Secretary-General to provide a report at least every 60 days, on the implementation of the resolutions by all parties to the conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic.

2. The information contained herein is based on data available to agencies of the United Nations system and obtained from the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic and other relevant sources. Data from agencies of the United Nations system on their humanitarian deliveries have been reported for April and May 2019.

II. Major developments

Box 1
Key points: April and May 2019

1. Despite the memorandum on the stabilization of the situation in the Idlib de-escalation area signed by the Russian Federation and Turkey on 17 September 2018, the number of civilian casualties, including civilian deaths, increased, more than 300,000 people were displaced and significant damage was caused to civilian infrastructure during the reporting period.

2. Health-care and education services continued to be attacked, with 26 incidents affecting health-care facilities and assets confirmed by the World Health Organization and 32 incidents affecting education facilities verified by the United Nations Children’s Fund. The incidents all occurred in the north-west of the country and resulted in the killing and injuring of children, sick people and humanitarian workers.
3. Humanitarian conditions in Rukban, on the Syrian-Jordanian border, remain dire, and access for a third humanitarian convoy is still pending. Movement out of Rukban continued throughout the reporting period, and 13,364 people had departed by 31 May.

4. In the north-east of the county, the Hawl camp in Hasakah Governorate now hosts about 72,000 people, 91 per cent of whom are women and children. During the reporting period, approximately 1,000 Syrian internally displaced persons departed the camp to their areas of origin in Tabaqah, while a further 500 foreign nationals also left. Humanitarian access to the annex hosting other foreign nationals (non-Syrian and non-Iraqi) continued to be restricted by camp authorities.

5. In April and May 2019, United Nations humanitarian agencies and partners continued to reach millions of people in need across the Syrian Arab Republic. Humanitarian assistance provided by United Nations agencies included food for an average of 3.24 million people in need each month and more than 3.18 million health and medical treatments to people throughout the country. Cross-border assistance, authorized under Security Council resolutions 2165 (2014), 2191 (2014), 2258 (2015), 2393 (2017) and 2449 (2018), remained a vital part of the humanitarian response. During the reporting period, 1,157 trucks (34 consignments) delivered life-saving assistance to more than 1 million people through cross-border deliveries, including food assistance for some 738,000 people in April and in May (monthly average).

6. Humanitarian access from within the Syrian Arab Republic continued to be challenging in some parts of the country and for some humanitarian actors, including the United Nations. During the reporting period, a number of access constraints were reported in parts of Idlib, owing mostly to heightened hostilities. Access was also limited in Raqqa city and east of the Euphrates River in Dayr al-Zawr, including the Hajin enclave, owing mostly to widespread explosive hazard contamination. Some areas in the south of the country and in parts of eastern Ghutah were also not accessible in a sustainable manner to some humanitarian actors owing to administrative regulations.

Escalation of hostilities in the de-escalation area in the north-western part of the Syrian Arab Republic

3. The escalation of hostilities in the north-western part of the Syrian Arab Republic in February and March dramatically increased in late April, with air strikes, artillery shelling and clashes between Syrian government forces, the United Nations-listed terrorist group the Levant Liberation Organization and non-State armed opposition groups reported in and around the Idlib de-escalation area. Despite the memorandum on the stabilization of the situation in the Idlib de-escalation area signed by the Russian Federation and Turkey on 17 September 2018, the number of civilian casualties increased during the reporting period, with more than 160 civilians killed between 28 April and the end of May and many more injured. More than 300,000 people were displaced during the reporting period, with most moving closer to the Turkish border in Idlib Governorate and smaller numbers moving to western or northern Aleppo. Many of those displaced moved to overcrowded displacement sites or were entirely without shelter. On 29 May, the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic announced its intention to open two border crossings, Morek and Abu al-Zuhur, for the evacuation of civilians from Idlib. As the month ended, the border crossings were still not opened. Fighting and insecurity caused significant damage to civilian infrastructure (see paras. 5 and 6 for incidents affecting health-care facilities and assets and education facilities).
4. Hostilities and other forms of violence continued to severely affect civilians in various parts of the Syrian Arab Republic, in particular in the north-west of the country. During the reporting period, the significant increase in hostilities and violence severely affected civilians, including many women and children, as well as civilian objects and infrastructure, in particular in southern Idlib and areas of northern Hama. Large numbers of civilian deaths and injuries were reported in that context owing to air and ground-based strikes by government and pro-government forces (see annex for examples of such incidents), as well as significant damage to educational and medical facilities, local markets, homes, settlements for internally displaced persons and other civilian infrastructure. Many civilians were also killed and injured as a result of sporadic ground-based strikes by various non-State armed groups and/or United Nations-listed terrorist groups in parts of Hama, Idlib and Aleppo Governorates. This included an attack on the Neirab camp for Palestine refugees in Aleppo, killing at least 10 civilians and wounding more than 30. Damage was also inflicted on two power stations.

5. Attacks affecting educational facilities continued to be reported by humanitarian organizations. A total of 32 incidents were verified by the United Nations Children’s Fund during the reporting period, including the following:

(a) On 4 April, in Nayrab village, Idlib city centre, Mus’ab Bin Umayr primary school was hit by a rocket during school hours while students were attending classes, resulting in deaths and injuries;

(b) In the afternoon of 8 April, multiple rockets landed in Jisr al-Shughur in western rural Idlib, affecting two adjacent schools;

(c) On 11 April, in Jisr al-Shughur, Idlib Governorate, Rab’at al-Adawiyah school was hit by a rocket, resulting in the partial destruction of the school building;

(d) On 14 April, shelling on Khan Shaykhun city, Idlib Governorate, hit the Bayan educational institute in the Gharbi neighbourhood, partially damaging the building;

(f) On 25 April, Khalid al-Najim primary school, in Khan Shaykhun, Idlib Governorate, was hit by a rocket, causing partial damage to the facility. This was the second time that the school was hit in April;

(g) On 28 April, in Hama Governorate, warplanes conducted a number of attacks and launched several rockets targeting the Shamali neighbourhood, in Qal’at al-Madiq, resulting in the massive destruction of some facilities and infrastructure, including the building of the education directorate (heavily affected) and three schools in a complex (partially damaged): Fawaz Haj Hussein primary school, Akram Ali secondary school and Akram Ali high school;

(h) On 28 April, three schools (Huwayz primary school, Huwayz secondary school and Huwayz high school) in the eastern part of Huwayz village, Qal’at al-Madiq district, Hama Governorate, were hit by rockets, causing massive damage. The same complex was also hit earlier this year. The schools went out of service as a result of the attack;

1 These attacks have been confirmed using tried and tested systems, whereby the United Nations receives reports from partners on the ground and reviews them against at least two other independent sources. Only attacks that are fully vetted and confirmed by all independent sources are included in the list of confirmed attacks. These systems are used worldwide and are widely respected.
(i) On 30 April, Qasabiyah school in Qasabiyah village, Khan Shaykhun, Idlib Governorate, was partially destroyed as a result of an air strike;

(j) On 2 May, Rakaya primary school in Rakaya village, Hish, Idlib Governorate, was damaged by an air strike. This was the last functional school in the village;

(k) On 3 May, three schools (Martyr Khaled al-Musa high school, Khawla primary school and Qadisiyah school) in Habit village, in Ma’arrah, Idlib Governorate, were affected by an air strike. The attack resulted in partial damage to the school buildings;

(l) On 4 May, Habit village, in Khan Shaykhun subdistrict, Ma’arrah, Idlib Governorate, was intensively targeted by air strikes that resulted in civilian casualties and damage to different facilities. In one attack, a 9-year-old girl was killed together with her mother when a rocket landed close to their house. In the same incident, a nearby school (Martyr Khaled al-Bakkour primary school) was also affected;

(m) On 4 May, Ali Bin Abi Talib high school was severely damaged as a result of barrel bombs that landed in Safuhun village, Ma’arrah, Idlib;

(n) On 4 May, in Lajj village, Ariha district, Idlib, Lajj primary school was severely affected by an air strike;

(o) On 4 May, Dayr Sunbul primary school in Dayr Sunbul village, Ariha, Idlib, was heavily damaged by an air strike. A rocket landed on the school, causing partial destruction. Classes had been suspended three days before the incident, and no casualties therefore resulted from the attack;

(p) On 7 May, Kansafran primary school in Kansafran village, Ariha, Idlib, was heavily damaged by an air strike. A rocket landed on the school and caused partial destruction, shutting down the school;

(q) On 7 May, Kafr Sajnah high school in Kafr Sajnah village, Ma’arrah, Idlib, was heavily damaged by an air strike. According to the source, a rocket landed on the school, causing partial destruction. The incident was part of a series of attacks that took place in the village that day;

(r) On 7 May, the agricultural school in Kansafran village, Ariha, Idlib, was damaged by an air strike. A rocket landed on the school, causing partial destruction;

(s) On 13 May, Shaykh Mustafa school in Shaykh Mustafa village, Kafr Nubl, Idlib, was affected by a barrel bomb released about 150 m from the school. The facility sustained damage such as broken windows, doors and furniture. The village witnessed multiple attacks, mainly aerial, that day;

(t) On 14 May, the city of Khan Shaykhun was affected by intensive air strikes, one of which targeted an area in the city centre where Abdul Rahman al-Nassir school is located. One of the rockets landed inside the school, causing massive damage to the facility and killing the school’s headmaster;

(u) On 15 May, Ibn Al Qayyem secondary school in Hish, Hish, Idlib, was completely destroyed and put out of service as a result of an air strike;

(v) On 23 May, at 2.30 p.m., the Ma’arrat al-Nu’man district and the surrounding neighbourhoods were shelled and bombarded. The shelling hit the Iqraa Kafr Uwayd formal school in Kafr Uwayd town, causing partial damage;

(w) Yarmouk primary school was heavily damaged by an air strike in Kafr Nubl, Ma’arrah, Idlib, on 28 May. The incident took place in the early morning, before the arrival of students. In the light of the incident, the education directorate decided to cancel the final exams for all schools in the town and in other cities in Ma’arrah.
6. During the reporting period, the Surveillance System for Attacks on Health Care of the World Health Organization reported 26 incidents affecting health-care facilities and assets. The attacks resulted in the killing of 6 health workers and patients and the injuring of 11, and affected the following facilities and assets:

7. The latest bout of violence in the north-west has affected agricultural activities in northern Hama and southern Idlib Governorates, where shelling and air strikes have led to the destruction of crops and damage to farming equipment. Agricultural areas in Idlib are known to be among the most fertile in the country, but a number of fields were fully or partially destroyed by fires, and many farmers faced difficulties in controlling the flames. In addition to triggering further population displacement, the recent bombardments are bound to affect food security in the affected areas during the harvest season, running until mid-June, as farmers are no longer able to access their fields. Insecurity has also made it difficult for farmers to tend to their crops.
Other fires were reported in the Governorates of Raqqah, Homs, Aleppo, Hasakah and Dayr al-Zawr as a result of high temperatures and unexploded ordnance, with smaller-scale fires reported in Ladhiqiyah, Tartus, Rif Dimashq, Qunaytirah, Dar’a and Suwayda’. These fires will significantly affect the population, in particular in the north-east of the country, where about 80 per cent of people’s income is generated from seasonal crop production. In addition, material damage to farm equipment will hamper the ability of farmers to cultivate their lands.

8. The escalation of hostilities in the north-west, combined with high levels of need and vulnerability, has had catastrophic humanitarian consequences for the estimated 3 million people living in the Idlib area. The humanitarian community is responding in accordance with the readiness plan that was prepared in late 2018 and updated in May 2019. The United Nations is responding to the needs of the affected population with emergency food assistance through ready-to-eat rations, with more than 18,000 people reached in April and more than 190,000 in May. In addition to the emergency food assistance, the United Nations and its implementing partners are covering nearly 700,000 people each month with general food assistance in the form of food rations across the north-west and plan to extend this to 835,000 people by June. Many humanitarian responders and service providers are, however, part of the affected population. As a result, in many areas of active hostilities, humanitarian operations have been suspended. This includes the suspension of health, nutrition and protection services previously supporting some 600,000 people, including 21 immunization centres and at least 49 health facilities. Even with preparedness efforts, the response is stretched, and a further increase in need brought on by additional fighting could risk overwhelming it.

Update on overall developments

9. The Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Syria continued his diplomatic efforts, meeting with the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic, the opposition Syrian Negotiations Committee and key regional and international actors. Discussions focused on advancing five priorities in accordance with Security Council resolution 2254 (2015), namely, building trust between the parties, making progress on detainees and missing persons, engaging a wide spectrum of Syrian society, finalizing the composition and terms of reference of a credible, balanced, inclusive and viable constitutional committee and deepening international dialogue on the Syrian Arab Republic through the creation of a common forum in support of United Nations efforts in Geneva. As part of these efforts, the Special Envoy and the Deputy Special Envoy also met with communities of refugees and internally displaced persons, members of Syrian civil society and the Syrian Women’s Advisory Board.

10. The Special Envoy attended the meeting of the Astana guarantors (the Islamic Republic of Iran, the Russian Federation and Turkey) in Nur-Sultan on 26 April. The guarantors reaffirmed their determination to implement fully the agreements on stabilization in the Idlib de-escalation area. They reiterated their determination to advance further efforts of the Working Group on the release of detainees/abductees and the handover of bodies as well as the identification of missing persons, of which the United Nations is a member.

11. The Special Envoy met with the Syria Small Group, namely, Egypt, France, Germany, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America, which convened in Geneva on 3 May.

Protection

12. Hostilities and other forms of violence continued to severely affect civilians in various parts of the Syrian Arab Republic. Civilians continued to be killed and injured and vital infrastructure destroyed and damaged, including as a result of ground-based and air strikes. Thousands of communities have been left in areas littered with explosive hazards that continue to kill and injure civilians and block humanitarian access even long after hostilities have ended. The use of improvised explosive devices in certain areas adds to the complexity of the explosive hazard threat.

13. The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) recorded several incidents in which civilians in Dar‘a Governorate who had assumed positions within the Government-run local councils and other institutions were killed by unidentified perpetrators in what appeared to be targeted killings.

14. OHCHR continued to receive reports of the arrest and detention of civilians, including women and children, by Government-affiliated forces. In some incidents, such cases appeared to amount to arbitrary arrest and detention. During the reporting period, OHCHR documented at least seven cases that may amount to arbitrary detention and/or enforced disappearance, including the arrest of two boys in Dar‘a Governorate. The reasons for their arrest remain unknown to their families, who have been denied information about their detention by the authorities.

15. Civilians living in areas under the control of the Levant Liberation Organization and other non-State armed groups in Idlib and Aleppo Governorates continued to be abducted, deprived of their liberty and subjected to targeted killings, beatings and other forms of cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment by such groups. Civilians, including humanitarian service providers and media activists, were targeted and threatened with death, mainly for being critical of the Levant Liberation Organization, or at times to extort money or ransom from them, while the reasons behind many of the incidents often remain unknown.

16. Other civilians, including women and children in Hawl camp, controlled by non-State armed groups in Hasakah Governorate, continued to suffer the consequences of family separation, restricted access to humanitarian assistance and restrictions on their freedom of movement that, in some cases, may amount to deprivation of liberty. OHCHR confirmed reports that children over the age of 12 years born to persons allegedly or actually associated with Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) have been separated from their mothers and are being “held” in separate and unidentified places, with no information provided to their families about their status or location.

Humanitarian update

17. Humanitarian conditions in Rukban remain dire, with the most recent deployment of a humanitarian convoy having taken place in early February. People began to leave Rukban with their personal belongings in late March and continued to do so in April and May. People make their own arrangements to leave the 55-km perimeter and then have their movement facilitated to five shelters in and around Homs city, where they typically stay for 24 hours. They then move on to a destination of their choice, or to temporary locations in cases in which people are not yet able to return to their areas of origin or choice for security reasons. The United Nations assessed the five shelters twice, on 24 April and on 13 May, and has received approval for regular visits, although further authorizations are still pending. On those visits, the conditions were assessed as adequate, with new arrivals receiving assistance from the Syrian Arab Red Crescent, with support from the United Nations, including vaccinations for children and medical assistance. As at 31 May, a total of 13,364 people, or approximately 32 per cent of the estimated 41,700 people previously residing in Rukban, had departed. The number of people leaving Rukban had decreased by the end of May owing to the lack of vehicles and the high cost of transport to the 55-km perimeter. Humanitarian actors remain concerned about the inability of women of reproductive age and adolescent girls to obtain access to life-saving reproductive health and sexual and gender-based violence services.

18. The United Nations continues to strongly advocate and reiterate its readiness to support efforts to pursue durable solutions for the people in Rukban in a comprehensive manner, from point of departure to areas of destination, and in accordance with humanitarian principles. The deployment of a third humanitarian convoy to Rukban was formally requested twice during the reporting period, on 14 April and on 9 May, to allow essential needs to be met. Neither request was approved by the Syrian authorities. The United Nations requested access again on 30 May to assess the situation in order to facilitate transport for those expressing a voluntary and informed desire to leave and at the same time to deliver critical needs-based humanitarian assistance. The United Nations continues to reiterate the importance of a carefully planned, principled approach to the situation in Rukban that ensures respect for core protection standards and does not expose vulnerable and, in many cases, traumatized displaced men, women and children to additional harm. All movement must be voluntary, safe, well-informed and dignified, with humanitarian access assured throughout.

19. In the north-east of the country, the Hawl camp in Hasakah Governorate currently hosts about 72,000 people, 91 per cent of whom are women and children. About 67 per cent of the camp population are under the age of 18 years. The breakdown of the camp population is as follows: 43 per cent Iraqi, 42 per cent Syrian and 15 per cent other foreign nationals. Arrival rates have stabilized, with no recent influxes to the camp. During the reporting period, approximately 1,000 Syrian internally displaced persons departed the camp to their areas of origin in Tabaqah, while a further 500 foreign nationals also left. The humanitarian situation remains challenging. Several incidents have occurred during the reporting period, including the expression of support for radical ideologies. The main drivers of tensions in the camp appear to be the absence of information on the whereabouts and welfare of male family members, including children, who are presumably detained, grievances due to living conditions and limited access to services, restricted freedom of movement and a lack of clarity with regard to procedures on returns and future departure options. To reduce tensions within the camp, residential areas are currently being reorganized by population profile, with Iraqis, Syrians and other foreign nationals separated into different parts of the camp.

20. Access to the annex hosting foreign families and individuals (non-Syrian and non-Iraqi), including more than 9,000 children of approximately 60 different nationalities, continued to be restricted by camp authorities and was under enhanced security measures. Dialogue continued between service providers and the camp administration to improve access for humanitarian organizations with specific mandates and expertise to provide support and pathways towards possible solutions for the foreign nationals in the camp, a number of whom are now obtaining access to work.

21. Approximately 2,000 Iraqi households have registered for repatriation, directly organized by the Iraqi authorities and the camp administration. However, a lack of valid identification documents may constitute an obstacle. There are also significant concerns related to the conditions of return to Iraq. Clarity on the process and conditions of return is necessary to support informed and voluntary returns in safety.

22. Tension also increased during the reporting period in the south-west of the country, mainly in Dar’a Governorate, following an arrest campaign by government forces on 15 May against former non-State armed group leaders in several towns. As a result, clashes took place in Sanamayn town, resulting in casualties on both sides.
Government forces imposed a strict military encirclement on Sanamayn town, and additional military enforcements were deployed, preventing civilians and commercial movement for a few days. On 23 May, the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic released a number of detainees in order to ease tensions. Following this incident, former non-State armed groups attacked checkpoints of the Government in four locations in the Yarmouk basin. As a result of these developments, humanitarian access to the area has been affected, although assistance efforts and missions by many humanitarian actors continued.

Humanitarian response

23. During the reporting period, United Nations humanitarian agencies and partners continued to reach millions of people in need, including children, adolescent girls and women of reproductive age, throughout the Syrian Arab Republic. Humanitarian assistance provided by United Nations agencies included food for an average of 3.24 million people in need each month and more than 3.18 million health and medical treatments to people throughout the country (see table 1).

24. From inside the Syrian Arab Republic, humanitarian assistance provided by United Nations agencies included food for a monthly average of 2.55 million people in Government-controlled areas and in the north-east. Almost 2 million people received water, sanitation and hygiene services and supplies. More than 1 million children and mothers were reached with primary health-care, maternal, reproductive health and immunization services. Moreover, approximately 540,000 people benefited from gender-based violence prevention, protection and psychosocial support services and child protection services. United Nations operations from within the Syrian Arab Republic also included more than 3.18 million health and medical treatments to people throughout the country.

25. As part of its country-wide humanitarian response, the United Nations and humanitarian partners continued to deliver life-saving assistance to more than 700,000 people each month in the three Governorates of the north-eastern part of the Syrian Arab Republic. This included supporting some of the most vulnerable people in camps for internally displaced persons, such as those who had been displaced owing to intense fighting in what were then the last ISIL-held areas in Hajin and Baghuz, in south-eastern Dayr al-Zawr Governorate. At the Hawl camp, the United Nations and its humanitarian partners rapidly mobilized a major relief operation, in some cases redirecting capacities and stocks from other parts of the country to scale up the response. In total, some 35 humanitarian partners are providing more than 50 activities and services to camp residents. During the reporting period, three new field hospitals were established, as well as a safe space for women and girls, while vaccination campaigns are ongoing across the camp, with 12,000 children immunized to date. Other humanitarian indicators, including crude mortality and global acute malnutrition rates, have also been kept within emergency thresholds. All camp residents receive monthly food rations with a 30-day feeding period, and bread is provided daily. For example, in April, 73,478 individuals received monthly food rations and 681,088 kg of bread was provided to 73,478 individuals per day.

26. In May, the Syrian authorities approved a United Nations technical surge mission to Hasakah, which will take place immediately after Eid al-Fitr. Following the launch of two Syria Humanitarian Fund reserve allocations worth $14.4 million to meet the growing needs in the north-east of the country, the Fund has disbursed almost $9.8 million to support the response in the Hawl camp. However, the funding gap for camps in the north-east stands at $24.5 million, of which $20.8 million is required to continue to provide humanitarian life-saving assistance and services in the Hawl camp until the end of 2019.

27. As mentioned earlier, 13,364 people had left Rukban as at the end of the reporting period. The United Nations is providing assistance through the Syrian Arab Red Crescent to people departing Rukban and transiting through the shelters, as well as in areas of destination. However, sustained assistance for some 28,000 people who remain in Rukban is equally critical. Food, basic medicines and other life-saving supplies delivered in February have run out inside Rukban. Fuel is scarce and prices for basic goods have sharply increased. The request for the deployment of a humanitarian convoy to Rukban was reiterated during the reporting period, but no approval was received by the Syrian authorities. Discussions on a way forward are planned in mid-June. The United Nations continues to reiterate its readiness to support efforts to pursue durable solutions for the people of Rukban in a comprehensive manner.

28. Humanitarian mine-action partners continued to implement programmes across the country, which included the delivery of risk education and victim assistance to vulnerable populations. In Damascus, the second Mine Action Service risk education teams completed their training and are expected to deploy in the coming period to affected communities in Rif Dimashq, Dar’a, Qunaytirah and Suwayda’ Governorates. The third risk education teams have begun training in Homs to cover Hama Governorate. Moreover, during the month of April, the Mine Action Service conducted a risk awareness campaign that reached millions of people across the Syrian Arab Republic, with messaging shared through newspapers, text messaging, social media and other outlets. The United Nations Children’s Fund and its partners also continued to carry out mine risk education activities on a daily basis in many parts of the country.

29. Cross-border deliveries continued under the terms of Security Council resolutions 2165 (2014), 2191 (2014), 2258 (2015), 2332 (2016), 2393 (2017) and 2449 (2018) (see table 2). In line with those resolutions, the United Nations notified the Syrian authorities in advance of each shipment, including its contents, its destination and the number of beneficiaries expected to be reached. In April and May, 1,157 trucks (34 consignments) delivered life-saving assistance for more than 1 million people through cross-border deliveries (see figure 1).

30. During the reporting period, the Russian Federation sent informational bulletins to the United Nations from the Centre for Reconciliation of Opposing Sides and Refugee Migration Monitoring, which outlined the provision of bilateral relief assistance. Other Member States also continued to provide bilateral and other forms of humanitarian assistance.

Humanitarian access

31. The provision of humanitarian assistance requires timely, safe, sustained and unimpeded access by the United Nations and all humanitarian partners to people in need across the Syrian Arab Republic. The access landscape in the country is complex, with different areas serviced differently and different types of services requiring different operating modalities. Access is critical for principled humanitarian action, which depends notably on an ability to assess needs and deliver assistance and to monitor and evaluate impact independently, including by regularly engaging directly with affected people.

32. During the reporting period, the United Nations continued to provide assistance from within the Syrian Arab Republic to millions of people in need in thousands of locations throughout the country. In recent months, the focus of access monitoring and reporting from Damascus has moved from a model of tracking the number of convoys to also looking at access of staff and the ability to deliver assistance as well as carry out assessments and monitoring and provide protection services. More than 1,700 United Nations staff members are present in the Syrian Arab Republic, with more than 500 deployed in nine hubs outside Damascus (Aleppo, Dar’a, Dayr al-Zawr, Hama, Homs, Ladhiqiyyah, Qamishli, Suwayda’ and Tartus). A further 3,860 staff members of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) are deployed across the country.

33. Many of the aid deliveries are implemented through national partners, in particular national non-governmental organizations and the Syrian Arab Red Crescent. The United Nations is regularly deployed alongside the Syrian Arab Red Crescent, including to undertake assessments, accompany deliveries and follow up with monitoring and evaluation missions. In April and May, the United Nations undertook hundreds of missions throughout the Syrian Arab Republic (see table 3). Some of those missions, in particular those for staff based in Damascus, required formal approval from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (see table 4), while others, in particular those for field-based staff, were deployed in accordance with agreements at the local level with governors and other relevant parties.

34. Improvements in access from within the Syrian Arab Republic have been made over the past year, in particular in Tartus, Ladhiqiyah, Hasakah, Homs, Aleppo and Hama Governorates. Nevertheless, humanitarian access from within the country continued to be challenging in some parts and for certain actors, including the United Nations. During the reporting period, a number of access constraints were reported in Sinjar, Tamani’ah and Abu al-Zuhur in Idlib, owing mostly to the high intensity of hostilities. Access was also limited in Raqqa city and east of the Euphrates River in Dayr al-Zawr, including the Hajin enclave, owing mostly to widespread explosive hazard contamination that remains after violence has ended and until clearance operations have taken place. Some areas in the south of the country and in eastern Ghutah were also not accessible in a sustainable manner owing to administrative regulations. Limitations on the ability of certain sectors to carry out structured needs assessments across the country remained.

35. During the reporting period, while the overall number of missions decreased owing to the fuel crisis and the observation of the holy month of Ramadan, missions to many areas across the country nevertheless increased, including areas less frequently accessible in the past. The United Nations and its partners continued to deliver assistance to an average of 3 million people on a monthly basis. The United Nations received approval from the Syrian authorities to conduct 559 missions, of which 482 were approved at the local level and 77 at the national level. Of the missions approved at the national level, 48 were intended for the monitoring of programmes. Of the 559 missions conducted, 77 required approval from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, most of which were missions to Hasakah Governorate. Of the requests submitted to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, 60 per cent were approved, none were denied and 40 per cent remain unanswered.

36. The United Nations Monitoring Mechanism for the Syrian Arab Republic continued its operations as authorized under Security Council resolutions 2165 (2014), 2191 (2014), 2258 (2015), 2332 (2016), 2393 (2017) and 2449 (2018). During the reporting period, the Mechanism monitored the delivery of 34 consignments by six United Nations agencies, consisting of 1,157 trucks, from three border crossings: 17 from Bab al-Hawa (999 trucks); 15 from Bab al-Salam (146 trucks); and 2 from Ya‘rubiyah (12 trucks). There were no concerns or questions about the humanitarian nature of the consignments sent. The United Nations provided 48-hour notice to the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic regarding all shipments. The Mechanism continued to benefit from the excellent cooperation of the Governments of Iraq, Jordan and Turkey.

Visas and registrations

37. The United Nations continued to work with the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic to allow for the timely provision of visas to staff. However, an increased number of visas for United Nations staff have been rejected, with 17 rejected during the reporting period as compared with 10 in February and March (see table 5).

Note: During the reporting period, the United Nations withdrew two visa requests.

38. A total of 26 international non-governmental organizations are registered with the Government to operate in the country.

Safety and security of humanitarian personnel and premises

39. The United Nations and non-governmental organizations continued to implement programmes in areas affected by frequent clashes among parties to the conflict, by air strikes and by the regular exchange of indirect artillery fire and other attacks. Humanitarian relief personnel also operate in areas highly contaminated with unexploded ordnance, explosive remnants of war and landmines.

40. Since the beginning of the conflict, hundreds of humanitarian workers have reportedly been killed, including 22 staff members of the United Nations and organizations of the United Nations system, 18 of whom were staff members of UNRWA; 66 staff members and volunteers of the Syrian Arab Red Crescent; and 8 staff members and volunteers of the Palestine Red Crescent Society. Many staff members of international and national non-governmental organizations have also been killed.

41. A total of 28 staff members of agencies and programmes of the United Nations system (1 staff member of the United Nations Development Programme and 27 staff members of UNRWA) were detained or missing at the end of the reporting period.

III. Observations

42. The past few weeks have seen a deadly escalation of the conflict in the north-western part of the Syrian Arab Republic. I have consistently warned against a full-scale battle in Idlib, stressing that this could risk unleashing a spiral of human suffering unlike any we have seen in the conflict so far. Despite my warnings, hostilities have intensified in the north-west of the country, involving government and pro-government forces, armed opposition forces and the United Nations-listed terrorist organization the Levant Liberation Organization. Over the past five weeks, air strikes, shelling and ground fighting, including the reported use of barrel bombs and incendiary weapons, have resulted in at least 160 civilian deaths, with hundreds more injured, and have pushed hundreds of thousands of people to flee to safer areas. Hospitals, schools and markets have been destroyed. Crops have been burned. Children are out of school. We are faced with a horrendous disaster in the making.

43. I am acutely alarmed by the scale of intolerable incidents affecting health-care and education facilities. Since 1 April, 26 attacks on health-care facilities in the north-west of the country have been confirmed by the World Health Organization through its global surveillance system. Some facilities have been hit twice. Other hospitals are closing for fear of being attacked. A total of 49 health-care facilities have partially or totally suspended their activities. I must remind all parties that intentionally directing attacks against hospitals and places where the sick and wounded are gathered, as well as against buildings, materials, medical units, transport and personnel using the distinctive emblems of the Geneva Conventions in conformity with international law, constitutes a war crime. Any military operations, including those by and against United Nations-listed terrorist groups, must respect the rules of international humanitarian law, including those on the protection of civilians and civilian objects. In this regard, I emphasize that hospitals and schools must be protected in accordance with the rules of international humanitarian law.

44. The escalation in the north-western part of the Syrian Arab Republic is undermining the efforts of my Special Envoy to reinvigorate the political process, and the threat of miscalculation and broader regional conflict is ever-present, posing threats to international peace and security. I reiterate my calls to all sides to maintain their commitments to upholding the memorandum on the stabilization of the situation in the Idlib de-escalation area signed by the Russian Federation and Turkey on 17 September 2018 and to all parties to uphold international humanitarian law and protect civilians. De-escalation is essential to advancing a political solution.

45. I condemn in the strongest terms reports of unlawful deprivation of liberty and enforced disappearances of persons, including women and children, held in Government-run detention facilities or by non-State armed groups. I call upon the Government and non-State armed groups to ensure full transparency in relation to persons in their custody, accounting for their fate, whereabouts and condition to relatives, and to institute effective and transparent investigations into all allegations of torture and ensure that perpetrators are held accountable. For individuals who are facing criminal prosecution, full respect for due process and fair trial rights should be ensured in accordance with international law. I would also remind the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic that it should exert all efforts, in association with mandated national and international bodies, to ascertain the whereabouts and condition of missing persons.

46. I remain disturbed about the situation of civilians who have fled the last ISIL hideouts in eastern Dayr al-Zawr, including women and children allegedly or actually associated with ISIL. Many of these civilians are being held in unacceptable conditions with limited access to humanitarian services, while others, including women and children, have been detained in unidentified places, with no information provided about their whereabouts or well-being.

47. Continued impunity for alleged serious violations of human rights and international humanitarian law by parties to the conflict remains of grave concern. I call upon all parties to the conflict, in particular the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic, all States, civil society and the United Nations system to cooperate fully with the International, Impartial and Independent Mechanism to Assist in the Investigation and Prosecution of Persons Responsible for the Most Serious Crimes under International Law Committed in the Syrian Arab Republic since March 2011, in particular by providing relevant information and documentation. Accountability for serious violations of human rights and international humanitarian law is central to achieving sustainable peace in the Syrian Arab Republic. I reiterate my call for the situation in the country to be referred to the International Criminal Court.

48. In view of ongoing serious concerns repeatedly raised with regard to the protection of civilians and other humanitarian and human rights concerns in the Syrian Arab Republic, I strongly urge the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic, in line with Human Rights Council resolutions S-18/1 and 19/22, to cooperate with OHCHR, including through the establishment of a field presence with the mandate to protect and promote human rights.

49. I call upon all parties to the conflict, especially the Syrian parties, as well as regional and international actors, to do their utmost to support the efforts of my Special Envoy to advance a political solution, as mandated by Security Council resolution 2254 (2015). I welcome his efforts to finalize the composition and terms of reference of the constitutional committee and to facilitate confidence-building measures. Only a comprehensive, inclusive, Syrian-led political solution that is in line with resolution 2254 (2015) and meets the legitimate aspirations of the Syrian people can lead the way towards a sustainable peace for the Syrian people and put an end to the unimaginable suffering endured by Syrians for far too long.

The explosion resulted in the collapse of several residential buildings. In previous similar incidents in Idlib Governorate, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights confirmed that non-State armed groups, including the Levant Liberation Organization, had placed arms depots in close proximity to civilians and civilian objects, which resulted in the killing and injuring of scores of civilians, including women and children, owing to the uncontrolled blasts of such depots.

* The list of incidents exemplifies human rights issues of concern raised in the report. Owing to the changing patterns of conflict and the loss of networks of credible and/or reliable sources in many conflict-affected areas, however, verifying incidents is increasingly difficult. The list, which contains only those incidents that were reported to the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and that have been verified according to its methodology, should not be considered comprehensive.
