Annex to the letter dated 9 April 2018 from the Permanent Representative of Peru to the United Nations addressed to the Secretary-General

Concept note for the Security Council high-level briefing on the theme “Peacebuilding and sustaining peace”, to be held on 25 April 2018

I. Background

1. On 27 April 2016, the Security Council adopted resolution 2282 \(2016\), which was substantially identical to General Assembly resolution 70/262, adopted simultaneously, on the review of the United Nations peacebuilding architecture.
2. The Security Council, in its resolution 2282 \(2016\), and the General Assembly, in its resolution 70/262, recognized that “sustaining peace” should be broadly understood as a goal and a process by which to build a common vision of a society, ensuring that the needs of all segments of the population are taken into account. This encompasses activities aimed at preventing the outbreak, escalation, continuation and recurrence of conflict, addressing its root causes, helping parties to conflict to end hostilities, ensuring national reconciliation and moving towards recovery, reconstruction and development.
3. Moreover, the Security Council and the General Assembly, in the two resolutions, posited that a comprehensive approach to sustaining peace should flow through the engagement of all three pillars of the United Nations — international peace and security, human rights and development — at all stages of conflict and in all its dimensions. This expressly includes strengthening the rule of law at the international and national levels and promoting the eradication of poverty, sustainable development, access to justice, accountability, good governance, democracy and gender equality.
4. In the two resolutions, the Security Council and the General Assembly expressed their appreciation for the contribution of peacekeeping operations to sustaining peace and peacebuilding, while acknowledging the importance of strong coordination, coherence and cooperation between the Council and the Peacebuilding Commission. In this regard, the Council expressed its intention to regularly request, deliberate and draw upon the advice of the Commission, including to assist with the longer-term perspective required for sustaining peace being reflected in the mandates of peacekeeping operations and special political missions.
5. Building upon such a comprehensive approach, on 21 December 2017, the Security Council adopted a statement by the President of the Council (S/PRST/2017/27), in which the Council stressed the need for more coordinated, coherent and integrated peacebuilding efforts with regard to a common strategy for sustaining peace that involves national and regional actors, including women and young people, the entire United Nations system, regional and subregional organizations and international financial institutions, involved in supporting nationally led processes in conflict-affected countries.
6. In this regard, the Security Council recognized the need to weigh the full range of responses when addressing a situation that may endanger international peace and security, and to deploy United Nations peacekeeping missions and pursue peacebuilding efforts only as an accompaniment, not as an alternative, to a political strategy addressing the root causes of conflict. It also emphasized the importance of integrated analyses of opportunities and challenges for sustainable peace and their relevance to developing context-specific solutions in countries emerging from conflicts.

7. In addition, the Security Council highlighted the importance of considering clear, achievable, sequenced and phased mandates, based on enhanced analysis and planning, when evaluating existing or establishing new peacekeeping operations, drawing upon the advice of the Peacebuilding Commission. It also expressed its intention to consider specific elements relating to peacebuilding and sustaining peace when reviewing the mandates and the configuration of peacekeeping missions, including the existence of a coordinated exit strategy.

II. Rationale

8. In response to the consensus reached by the General Assembly and the Security Council in 2016, on 18 January 2018, the Secretary-General issued his report on peacebuilding and sustaining peace (A/72/707-S/2018/43), which he linked to his ongoing efforts towards repositioning the United Nations development system, reforming management and restructuring the peace and security pillar — all aimed at ensuring greater coherence and accountability and generating greater synergies across the Organization in support of States in their efforts to build and sustain peaceful societies, with a particular focus on enhancing the capacities for conflict prevention.

9. In turn, the President of the General Assembly has decided to convene a high-level meeting on efforts and opportunities taken to strengthen the work of the United Nations in sustaining peace, to be held on 24 and 25 April 2018. The Assembly may adopt a resolution acknowledging the report of the Secretary-General and considering its recommendations, while ensuring adequate intergovernmental follow-up to ongoing peacebuilding and peace-sustaining efforts, in line with existing mandates.

10. As an important focus of its membership in the Security Council, it is a priority of Peru to promote a peace-sustaining approach to preventing and effectively addressing the root causes of conflict. This is in line with its commitment to multilateralism and the principle of the peaceful settlement of disputes and is based on its own national experience in building and sustaining a peaceful and inclusive society, resulting from a broad national consensus on effectively addressing the root causes of conflict and strengthening inclusive institutions for the promotion of sustainable development.

11. In this context, as President of the Security Council for the month of April 2018, Peru intends to convene a high-level meeting aimed at offering members of the Council an opportunity to share their views on the implications for the Council of the report of the Secretary-General on peacebuilding and sustaining peace as a complement to, and building upon, the momentum generated by the high-level event of the General Assembly.

III. Guiding questions

12. We encourage interventions that address the following questions:

- How can the Security Council and its peacekeeping missions contribute to strengthening coherence and coordination among United Nations entities concerned with peacebuilding and efforts to sustain peace in countries affected by conflict?
- How can the Security Council help to ensure an adequate transition from conflict to post-conflict situations, including by adopting exit strategies for peacekeeping missions that help to lay the foundation for long-term and sustainable peace, in line with Chapter VI of the Charter of the United Nations?

- How can the Security Council, in cooperation with the Peacebuilding Commission, further support the building of institutional capacities at the national level, as well as efforts towards preventive diplomacy on the part of the Secretary-General, regional and subregional organizations and States, for strategically and systematically addressing situations that lead or may lead to the outbreak, escalation, continuation and recurrence of conflict?
- How can the Security Council further promote the participation of all relevant stakeholders, including women and young people, in national processes for peacebuilding and sustaining peace?
